STIPULATION RE FACTS, CONCLUSIONS OF LAW AND DISPOSITION

IN THE MATTER OF: Patricia L. Nelson

CASE NUMBER(S): 06-O-11460

FACTS AND CONCLUSIONS OF LAW.

Prior to in or about December 2005, respondent had no experience representing clients before the IRS, had no expertise regarding tax lien cases and had never represented a client regarding a tax lien issue. Prior to on or about December 1, 2005, respondent purchased a marketing package from U.S. Tax Marketing Corp. The marketing package included a step by step guide for attorneys on how to successfully market and obtain clients with tax liens.

Based upon one of the suggestions in the marketing plan, respondent subscribed to the services provided by Information Technologies, Inc. Respondent's subscription with Information Technologies Inc. included a service whereby Information Technologies, Inc. used respondent's letterhead and her signature on a mass mailing of letters sent by U.S. mail to individuals and entities contained in its data bank of individuals and entities that are the subject of state and federal tax liens.

After Information Technologies, Inc. sent the letters to the individuals contained in its data bank, respondent received a list of individuals and entities to whom the letters were sent. Respondent never reviewed Information Technologies, Inc.'s proposed distribution list prior to the distribution of the letters to determine the accuracy of Information Technologies, Inc.'s data base, to determine whether she was soliciting a potential client for whom she might have a conflict or to determine whether the potential client already was represented by counsel.

Prior to the first distribution of letters sent out on respondent's behalf, respondent knew that the letter contained false and misleading statements. However, respondent made no effort to correct the misleading statements.

Respondent's entire letter was false and misleading because it represented that respondent had significant experience representing individuals before the IRS, had numerous clients whom she was representing before the IRS and due to her skill and expertise had obtained successful results for numerous clients who had problems with the IRS.

The entire letter was false and misleading because it intended to convince those subject to tax liens that respondent had an expertise and successful track record defending IRS tax lien cases, when respondent had no expertise, experience or successful track record defending IRS tax lien cases.

Conclusions of Law

By sending out a mass mailing of the letter, which contained false and misleading statements, respondent engaged in acts of dishonesty in wilful violation of Business and Professions Code, section 6106.

PENDING PROCEEDINGS.

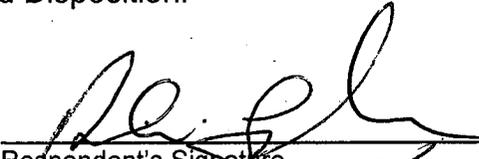

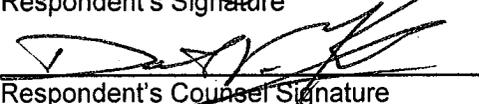

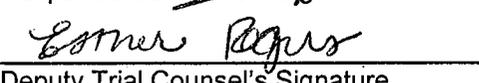

The disclosure date referred to, on page one, paragraph A.(7), was April 11, 2007.
